PREFACE.

In presenting this volume to the public the author desires to say in explanation that it is the result of many years of patient, persistent, pains-taking labor, undertaken at first in intervals of leisure for the sake of the knowledge to be derived, and prosecuted later in order that others might have the benefit of the compilation in a succinct and accessible form, of valuable records and material drawn from many and widely-scattered sources. It is hoped that the work will prove both interesting and useful to those who are seeking knowledge in this line of history.

The author has chosen what he believes to be the simplest and most direct and comprehensible method of classification and reference, stopping with only the most salient facts, and with few words, in order that there may be no waste of labor in printing, or of time in reading.

It is not to be expected that all will approve or be satisfied with what is here given. No doubt there is other material which might have been presented, and which would have been welcomed and made use of had any one been interested to supply it. No attempt has been made to find or give the children of all married daughters, but whenever such records have been furnished they have been included and published. The aim has been to give the family records rather than personal history, or biography. The records of the children of the sons have not always been obtainable. In some cases families have kept no records; in others they have either been completely lost, or withheld from the compiler. Effort has been made to give all families whose address was known, or some kindred member thereof, notice of the work, with an opportunity to be heard from and represented. In some instances repeated applications have been made for facts and records, and no attention has been paid to the requests. There are those who regard the work as of no account, a waste of time and effort, and they have plainly said so. On the other hand the number of those who have been interested, and who have gladly and cheerfully co-operated, sent records, written letters to others, and helped to make the work of use and interest, is large, a long, long list, too many to mention by name, whose kindnesses and expressed good wishes the author deeply appreciates, and will ever hold in precious and tender remembrance.

It was found that there were many first-comers of the Adams name in New England even as early as the middle of the seventeenth century, not all of whom left any considerable line of descent which could be traced. A few large families only have any connected histories. Those in Massachusetts were "Henry of Braintree," "John of Plymouth," "William of Ipswich," "Robert of Newbury," "George of Watertown." There were numbers of smaller lines, and still others in Connecticut, Maine and New Hampshire. To separate the several lines and determine who were the individuals in each, to find whither some had migrated, and if there were descendants living, often with only slight clues, has been no easy task, has required much time, much persistent effort, which only they who have had experience can know and appreciate. It has been necessary to consult large numbers of local, town and county histories, as well as hundreds of original, town and probate records, to make frequent journeys, visit many people, and to write thousands of letters, involving large outlay for traveling, clerks' fees, postage, &c.

Nothing has been accepted and given as history, without what appeared to be good and sufficient reason. But many difficult problems have arisen, and the author may have erred in leaving some of these undetermined. There are families claiming descent from Henry Adams which are not included in this history, for the reason that their connection was not clearly and surely made out. The relations of some are not what the descendants believed and claimed, but are given as they have been found. The connection of other families with the Braintree stock may yet be made out and published. This book will help new researches. To delay its publication until all the knotty problems are solved, and all missing data supplied, would endanger any publication, for life is short and uncertain with all.

The book is not perfect; no such work can be. It does not claim to be complete, is not as full as the author would like to see it, although as full probably as the average work of its kind. Nor can it be free of mistakes and errors, being derived from thousands of fallible sources. Considering what many of the sources are it would be a marvel if there were not some grave mistakes, some humiliating errors.

Uniformity in the spelling of proper names has not been attempted, as such spelling varies with the taste or whim of every person, and sometimes names are so illegibly written that the correct spelling can only be conjectured. Residences will be found only approximately correct, since parties are removing from place to place, and their real abode is often unknown.

No doubt there will be disappointment because the book does not endorse and establish the connection with the Ap Adam pedigree, does not claim royal blood and a coat-of-arms for Henry Adams. The author anticipates criticism on this account. But unless there be found some further evidence than any which as yet appears, the truth of history requires that we give up the flattering belief.

It is not anticipated that the sale of the whole edition of the book will compensate for all the outlay of time, labor and money spent in its production, but the satisfaction derived in the doing of the work is a partial compensation, and that the book will commend itself to posterity, and prove useful when all who are now living have passed away, is the author's firm belief.

To the many friends who have so kindly aided in the work, and whose words of encouragement from time to time have placed me under obligation to them, most hearty thanks are now tendered.

FAIR HAVEN, Vt., Jan., 1898.

EXPLANATION.

Each of the sons of Henry Adams is placed separately, and his descendants given, each child who has descendants being numbered consecutively in the margin. These numbers appear in brackets at the right of the name, when the person is again given as a parent in the generation following. It is thus made easy to trace the ancestry or descent from any point in the book.

 The special attention of the reader is called to "Some Corrections and Additions," page 1232.

HENRY ADAMS OF BRAINTREE.

Henry Adams of Braintree, called thus because he was one of the earliest or first settlers in that part of the Massachusetts Bay designated "Mt. Wollaston," which was incorporated in 1640 as the town of Braintree. It included what is now Quincy, Braintree and Randolph, Mass.

He is believed to have arrived in Boston with his wife, eight sons and a daughter, in 1632 or 1633. The colonial authorities at Boston allotted to him 40 acres of land at "the Mount," for the ten persons in his family, Feb. 24, 1639-40.

The name of his wife is not known, nor where and when she died. It has been believed that she returned to England with her son John and daughter Ursula, and died there, which appears not improbable. Henry Adams died in Braintree, Oct. 6, 1646, and was buried on the 8th.

His will was proved June 8, 1647, and is as follows:

"First, my will is that my sonne Peter and John, and my daughter Ursula, shall have the grounde in the neck, both upland and meadow during the term I was to enjoy it, until it returne into the towne's hands againe, from whom I had it; also the aker in the mill fields: my will is that my bookes shall be divided amongst all my children, that my wife shall have and enjoy all my other goods so long as shee live unmarried, and if shee marry, then my will is y't Joseph, Edward and my daughter Ursula should enjoy all my ground in the fiede y't lieth on the way to Weymouth Ferry, and my house lott, with all the houses and fruit trees and all my movables at the death or marriage of my wife, provided they and their mother shall pay to my sonne Samuel that which is due to him for the ground I bought of him, to be paid in convenient tyme; but in case God soc deal with my wife that she bee constrained to make use of something by way of sale, shee may:—finally, for movables, my will is that my sonne Peter and John shall have an equal share with my sonne Joseph and Edward, and my daughter Ursula."

[See N. E. Hist. and Gene. Register, Vol. VII., p. 35 (1853)].

That Henry Adams came from Devonshire on the south coast of England, has become a current and fixed belief, from the fact that his great, great grandson, President John Adams, erected a monument to his memory in the old church yard at Quincy with the inscription,

“In memory of Henry Adams who took his flight from the Dragon persecution in Devonshire, England, and alighted with eight sons near Mt. Wollaston. One of the sons returned to England; and after taking time to explore the country, four removed to Medfield, and two to Chelmsford. One only, Joseph, who lies here at his left hand, remained here,—an original proprietor in the township of Braintree.”

The monument commemorates “the piety, humility, simplicity, prudence, patience, temperance, frugality, industry and perseverance” of the Adams ancestors.

President John Quincy Adams dissented from this opinion of his father, that Henry Adams came from Devonshire.

After giving the matter particular and thorough investigation, both in this country and in England, he published it as his conviction that Henry Adams was from Braintree in the county of Essex, on the east coast of England. “The statement in the Alden Collection,” he says, “that the first Henry came from Devonshire was received by the collector of Epitaphs from my father; but I believe it was not from Devonshire but from Braintree in the county of Essex, that he came. * * * * * My father supposed that he formed part of the company that came with Gov. Winthrop in 1630, most of whom were from Devonshire. But at the time my father formed this opinion Gov. Winthrop’s Journal had not been published.”

Winthrop’s Journal, I. 37, says, “1632: 14 Aug; The Braintree Company which had begun to settle down at Mt. Wollaston by order of Court, removed to Newtown. These were Mr. Hooker’s Company.” [See Family Memorial by Elisha Thayer; Note p. 38.]

Hooker himself arrived in Sept., 1633, but his Company, which was mostly made up from Chelmsford ——— perhaps also from Braintree and other neighboring villages of Essex county,—had arrived the year before. Hence it appears highly probable that Henry Adams from Braintree in Essex joined Hooker’s Company and arrived in Boston in 1632. Dr. James Savage, author of the Genealogical Dictionary of the early first-comers of New England, concurs in the opinion of President John Quincy Adams.

The brothers Adams [sons] were among the active citizens of Chelmsford, in England.

Moreover, there may have been other persons of the Adams name who came in Hooker's company, and removed with him from Newtown to Hartford and vicinity. They may have been kindred of Henry Adams.

It is a matter of regret that so little has been preserved, and is positively known of the ancestry, life and character of the noted progenitor of the Adams family of Quincy. It is known that he was a malster as well as yeoman, or farmer, and a plain, unassuming man of tact and ability, who came to America for a better opportunity for his large family. There is nothing to show that he bore any titles, or assumed any rank among nobility.

While there were many different styles of insignia in use—as many as twenty-eight different coats-of-arms, it is said upon good authority, in the Adams family,—there is nothing to indicate which, if any at all, were ever made use of by Henry Adams.

THE AP ADAM PEDIGREE.

It has been assumed that Henry Adams was of Welsh origin, the sixteenth generation from Ap Adam, the father of John, or Lord Ap Adam, who was called to Parliament by Edward I., as “Baron of the Realm,” from A. D. 1296 to 1307, and that he came out of the Marches or Borders of Wales into Devonshire.

This ancient pedigree was furnished by William Downing Bruce, Esq., F. S. A., who says, “It is copied from an ancient parchment roll, with arms, of the time of Charles I., which I discovered among the papers of the late Hamlin Adams, Esq., of Middleton Hall, M. P. from the county of Carmarthen.”

It was first published in this country in the New England Historical and Genealogical Register, Jan., 1853, Vol. VII., p. 39-40, and is as follows:

AP ADAM;

Sir John Ap Adam², Kt., Lord Ap. Adam; m. Elizabeth, dau. of Sir John Gourney of Beverstone and Tedenham, Gloucester. Residence several generations at Charlton, Gloucester.

Sir Thomas Ap Adam³, and others;

Sir William Ap Adam⁴.

Sir John Ap Adam⁵.

Thomas Ap Adam⁶.

Sir John Ap Adam⁷, Kt., m. Milicent, dau. of Sir Matt. Bisylls.

Sir John Ap Adam⁸, alias Adams; m. Clara, dau. of Mr. Roger Powell.

Roger Adams⁹, m. Jane, dau. of ———— Ellyott.

Thomas Adams¹⁰, m. Marie, dau. of Mr. Upton.

John Adams¹¹, m. Jane, dau. of Mr. Rennelegh.

John Adams¹², m. Catherine, dau. of Mr. Stebbing.

Nicholas¹³, m. and had no issue; John¹³, m. Margerye, dau. of Mr. Squier. George¹³, m. and had issue.

Richard¹⁴, (son of John¹³) m. Margaret, dau. of Mr. Armager.

Robert¹⁵, m. Elizabeth Sharlon.

George¹⁶; Henry¹⁶; Ambrose¹⁶; John¹⁶.

This pedigree is thought by good judges to be correct, and genuine, as far as Nicholas¹³,—"a mere transcript of the record made by the Heralds in their Visitation of Devonshire, 1564." "This Visitation Pedigree, however, ends with Nicholas¹³, who married and had no issue. No brothers of this Nicholas¹³ are given. . . The rest of the Pedigree beginning with John, brother of Nicholas¹³, is an addition by somebody." Col. Joseph L. Chester, LL. D., an American genealogist of high rank, resident in London, wrote [See New Eng. Historical and Genealogical Register, July, 1877; Vol. XXXI., p. 333], "I have no hesitation in pronouncing the portion connecting the English family with the Braintree Adamses utterly incorrect."

THE SONS OF HENRY ADAMS.

I. LIEUTENANT HENRY², b. in England, 1604; m. in Braintree, Nov. 17, 1643, Elizabeth Paine, dau. of Moses Paine, Esq.

He removed and settled in Medfield, Mass., in 1646, then a part of Dedham, but incorporated as a town in 1650. The greater part of the town was burned by the Indians in King Philip's war, 1676.

Lieut. Henry Adams was the first Town Clerk of Braintree, also of Medfield, was the Representative of the town in the General Court for the years 1659; '65; '74 and '75. He was Lieutenant of the Medfield military company, which fought against the Indians in 1675-76. He was killed by the Indians while standing in his doorway, Feb. 21, 1676, the second year of the war. His wife was accidentally shot the same day, at Rev. Mr. Wilson's house, and died 29th of Feb. She was confined to the house by sickness, and was in a bed in the chamber, when the gun in the hands of Capt. John Jacob of Hingham, who had charge of a company of about 80 men stationed at Medfield, was accidentally discharged in the room below her, the ball passing through her bed.

II. LIEUTENANT THOMAS², b. in England, 1612; m. in Braintree, 1642, Mary [Blackmore?]. According to Shattuck [History of Concord] Thomas removed with his brothers Samuel and John from Braintree to Concord, Mass., in 1646, John going thence to West Cambridge (now Arlington), and Thomas and Samuel settling in the west part of the town of Chelmsford in 1650-4.

He was chosen chief Sergeant of the military company in 1659, but the County Court refused to confirm him on account of his religious views. He was confirmed in April, 1660 upon solemnly agreeing not to disseminate his principles or notions contrary to what the church doth confessedly own and practice. He was chosen Ensign in 1678, and Lieutenant in 1682, in the company of which his brother Samuel was Captain. He was Town Clerk, Selectman, Commissioner or Representative to the General Court. He d. in Chelmsford, 20 July, 1688, age 76.

Lieut. Thomas made his will March 28, 1688: proved Oct. 7, 1690; inventory of property Aug. 11, 1688. To his wife Mary he gave the use of his house and orchard; his sons Pelatiah, Timothy and Samuel to provide for her. To Jonathan he gave 16 acres on the east end of his home lot, and other lands, and divided lands among the other sons, Samuel to pay £16 to his dau., Mary Cooper. His widow "Mary," as per Charlestown record, died 23 March 1694-5, age 82.

He removed first to Concord, Mass., and thence to Chelmsford, 1653-4; Capt. Samuel, brother of Thomas, was Commissioner of the Court in 1667; he erected mills in the east part of Chelmsford, near where Lowell now is. He had 450 acres of land granted him July 3, 1656, and exclusive right to erect and run a sawmill, provided he would sell boards at three shillings per 100; —and another grant of 100 acres, and right to build and run a grist or cornmill, provided he would keep a sufficient mill and miller.

He d. 24 Jan., 1688-9.

IV. DEACON JONATHAN², b. in England, 1619;

m. (1) Elizabeth Fussell, dau. of John Fussell;

m. (2) Mary ———.

He settled in Medfield. His house was burned by the Indians in 1676, and he rebuilt on what has been known as the Joseph Adams place in East Medway, (now Millis).

He d. in 1690, age 71.

V. PETER², b. in England, 1622; m. Rachel ———. He settled in Medfield 1652—his wife Rachel and son John coming with him from Braintree, Mass.

His house was burned with others by the Indians in 1676. He died about 1690.

VI. JOHN², b. in England, about 1624. See "John of Cambridge."

VII. JOSEPH², b. in England, 1626; m. in Braintree, Nov. 26, 1650, Abigail Baxter, dau. of Gregory and Margaret (Paddy) Baxter of Boston; d. in Boston, 27 Aug., 1692, age 58.

m. (3) Jan. 6, 1709–10 Sarah Taylor.

He settled, with the other three brothers, in Medfield, Mass.; was Ensign and Selectman, and was Representative of Medfield in the General Court in 1689, in 1692, and in 1702. He died in Medfield, 12 Nov., 1716, "the last of the original settlers."

Samuel Adams, "the elder," as he was sometimes called to distinguish him from the son, was a man of wealth and influence in Boston, owning a fine mansion on Purchase street at the foot of Summer street, overlooking the harbor. He was a justice of the peace, deacon of the old South church, selectman, member of the legislature and prominent as a leader in politics and business. He founded what was called the "caulkers' club," a political institution for "introducing certain persons into places of trust and power," perhaps the beginning of caucuses. Because of his wealth and political activity, the family ranked high in colonial society.

To meet the needs of the times banks were organized for the issuing of notes. Mr. Adams was connected with one of these which was patronized especially by farmers and mechanics. But the hostility of the British government compelled them to wind up, and in doing so, Mr. Adams lost his property. He died 8 March, 1747-8.

HON. JOHN ADAMS, LL.D.

Second President of the United States.

She is described as a woman of superior abilities and great good sense. Her letters, written to her husband during the Revolution, are interesting and valuable for the light they throw upon the life of that period.

President John Adams was graduated at Harvard College in 1755; taught school and studied law at Worcester for two years; was admitted to the Suffolk bar in 1758, and began practice in Boston, residing at Braintree (Quincy) till 1768, when he removed to Boston. He was employed as counsel, together with Jeremiah Gridley, the head of the Boston bar, and James Otis, the orator, to present a petition to the governor and council that the courts might proceed with business, though no stamps were to be had, and he was chosen one of a committee to draft instructions to the representatives of the town. In 1770 he was himself chosen a representative in the General Court, a position which he continued to occupy for a number of years, although his practice as a lawyer was larger than that of any other in the province. He was conspicuous as an adviser and leader of the patriot party.

He was one of the five delegates chosen by Massachusetts to the Congress of 1774, at Philadelphia; was a member of the Provincial Congress on his return, and in 1775 was again chosen a delegate to the Second Continental Congress. The war had already begun at Lexington. New England had an army of 15,000 men besieging the British in Boston; Congress was prevailed upon to assume the command and expense of the army, and Gen. Washington was chosen commander-in-chief. Adams was the leading spirit, aggressive and untiring; "the column," as Jefferson denominated him, upon whom Congress depended.

Upon him devolved the presidency and the burden of the board of war, a leadership which won for him the encomium of "the clearest head and firmest heart of any man in Congress," "the Martin Luther of the American revolution."

He went abroad as commissioner to France in Feb., 1778, and for the next ten years very much of his time was spent in the service of his country, as commissioner to France, minister to England and to Holland. Through his efforts a loan of two millions of dollars was negotiated in Holland, which proved of great value. He was Vice-President with Washington from 1789 to 1797, and President one term, 1797 to 1801.

By reason of the intense party division and feeling consequent, upon the French Revolution, he was defeated for re-election in 1800, and returned to his large farm and home in Quincy, where he passed the remainder of his life, devoted mainly to writing, and died on the 4th day of July, 1826, a few hours after the death of his former associate and friend, Thomas Jefferson. His son wrote of him: "In figure, John Adams was not tall, scarcely exceeding middle height, but of a stout, well-knit frame, denoting vigor and long life, yet as he grew old, inclining more and more to corpulence. His head was large and round, with a wide forehead and expanded brows. His eye was mild and benignant, but when excited, expressed the vehemence of his spirit."

He has been described as a man of greater learning and force than any of his contemporaries, but of ungovernable temper and undue self-esteem. His services to his country were of inestimable value.

Samuel Adams, the Boston patriot, was in some respects, without doubt, the most illustrious scion of the Henry Adams family. He was educated in the Boston Latin School and Harvard College, and although he left College to engage in business, when his parents desired him to enter the ministry, and the law was not so respectable as it has since become, the college honored his scholarship, and when a candidate for the master's degree in 1743, he showed of what material he was made, and what would come of him, in his his discussion of the thesis, "Whether it be lawful to resist the supreme magistrate, if the commonwealth cannot otherwise be preserved."

Upon his father's death, 1748, he assumed the business of brewing, and was called "Sammy the malster." When elected tax-collector he was called "Sammy the publican." He soon became prominent as an opponent of British rule in the colonies. In May, 1764, he drafted the instructions to Boston's representatives, which were the first public protest against the right of parliament to tax the colonies. He was elected representative to the legislature, 1765 to 1774, and was the writer of most of the remarkable state papers of that remarkable time. The circular letter of Massachusetts to the other colonies, written by him, particularly enraged the king, and the Legislature was ordered to rescind it, but refused, 92 to 17, to do so. Mr. Adams had the confidence and co-operation of the people in demanding the removal of the king's two regiments from Boston after the "massacre" in March, 1770. When in 1772, the king had ordered the judges of the courts to receive their salaries from the crown, and not from the colony, and the people of Boston asked the Governor to convene the Legislature, and he refused, Mr. Adams proposed that the towns of Massachusetts appoint "committees of correspondence," and in a short time eighty towns had chosen their committees. This led to the intercolonial committees, the founding of the Colonial Congress, and the declaration of independence. The subsequent political history of Mr. Adams is well known. "As an adroit political manager he was not surpassed by Jefferson. He had a genuine sympathy for men with leather aprons and hands browned by toil; he knew how to win their confidence, and never abused it, for he was in no sense a demagogue."

Samuel Adams and his cousin, John, were delegates to the first continental congress, 1774. He was a signer of the Declaration of Independence in 1776; became Lieut.-Governor of his State in 1789, and Governor in 1794-97. His decision to support the new Federal constitution in the Massachusetts convention of 1788 is said to have carried the ratification by the narrow majority of 187 yeas to 168 nays, and this was really the most important of all his great services to his country and the republic.

His cousin, President John Adams, declared him to have been of "incorruptible integrity," "the very soul of the Revolution," and that the appointment of Washington to the command of the army was due to him. Rufus Choate pronounced him "the matchless orator," and though none of his orations have come down to us, we know what they were.

He d. in Boston, 2 Oct., 1803. An excellent statue of him in bronze by Miss Whitney, stands in Dock Square, Boston, and his portrait by Copley is in Faneuil Hall.

HON. JOHN QUINCY ADAMS, LL.D.

President of the United States, 1825-1829.

Children of President John³, LL. D., (1735) [25] (Dea. John¹, Joseph³, Joseph², Henry¹) and Abigail (Smith) Adams; res. Braintree (Quincy), Mass.

53. i. Abigail¹, b. in Braintree, Mass., July 14, 1765; m. Hon. Henry William Smith, who was private secretary of President Adams, and appointed by him to the office of surveyor of the port of New York, which office he retained till 1807; res. Cherry Valley, N. Y. She d. 15 Aug., 1813, age 48 years.
54. ii. Hon. John Quincy¹, LL. D., b. in Braintree, in the south house on Franklin street, Quincy, July 11, 1767; m. July 26, 1797, Louisa Catherine Johnson, dau. of Joshua Johnson, Esq., of Maryland. She d. 1852.

John Quincy Adams began his public career in early boyhood. Going abroad with his father when 10 years old, he derived much of his education in European courts and capitals, and served as private secretary of the minister to Russia when in his 15th year. He entered Harvard College in 1786, when 19 years of age, and graduated in 1788; studied law for 3 years in the office of Chief Justice Theophilus Parsons at Newburyport, Mass., and was admitted to the bar in 1791. He opened an office and began practice, but in 1794 was appointed minister to the Hague by Washington, and in 1796 minister to Portugal. By the written advice of Washington, his father, on becoming President, made him minister to Berlin, whither he went soon after being married in London, in the Fall of 1797.

He resided several years at Berlin, perfecting his knowledge of the German language, negotiating treaties of commerce with Sweden and Prussia, and travelling in the meantime. A volume of his letters on Silesia, the New England of Europe, written at this time to his friends at home, was published and extensively circulated.

Returning to Boston he was elected a member of the Massachusetts Senate in 1802, and to the U. S. Senate in 1803. His support of the measures of President Jefferson as against the Federalist party of Massachusetts, by which he had been elected, led to a spirited controversy, in consequence of which he was defeated for re-election in 1809.

* President Madison appointed him ambassador to Russia, and while serving in that capacity he was joined by Clay and Gallatin on the commission which negotiated the treaty of peace at Ghent, Dec. 24, 1814. He remained in London as minister of the United States, but returned to become Secretary of State to President Monroe in 1817.

He was elected to the Presidency in 1824 by the House of Representatives, and served one term.

Upon his retirement he was chosen to represent his district in Congress, which he entered in December, 1831, and where he continued till his death seventeen years later, Feb. 23, 1848.

This was perhaps the most notable and useful period of his life. Cut loose from all party ties, he stood as the champion of his own independent thought and the rights of the people. With a strong natural constitution, a wide experience, superior mental powers and knowledge, he was heard whenever he spoke in Congress with great respect and attention, and exerted a powerful influence. He was especially distinguished for his fearless and eloquent advocacy of the right of petition for the abolition of slavery in the District of Columbia and the public domain, which had been denied by the dominating politicians, and which no other had the courage to defend, and continuing at his post to an advanced age, even till stricken down by death, he became known and denominated "the Old Man Eloquent."

His writings are numerous. As compared with his father, it has been said, "John Quincy Adams had more learning, perhaps, but John Adams had more genius. In energy, spirit, firmness and indomitable courage, John Quincy Adams was his father's equal, in self command, in political prudence, and even in capacity for hard work, his superior. Both will live forever as representatives and embodiments of the spirit and ideas of New England during the periods in which they figured."

Children of Lieut. James³, (1662) [5] (Ensign Edward², Henry¹) and Mary (——) Adams; res. Barrington, now Barrington, R. I.

- i. James⁴, b. in Barrington, R. I., Oct., 1691, d. young.
23. ii. James⁴, b. in Barrington, June 28, 1693; m. "Elizabeth" ——.

He resided during the greater part of his life in Barrington, and was on a committee in 1738 to advise the Rev. Mr. Heath of a vote to hold preaching at the house of Mr. Edward Bosworth in Barrington. According to Miss Calkins' history of Windham county, Conn., he purchased a tract of land in Killingly, Conn., (on Putnam Heights) in 1746, paying the heirs of Joseph Allen £2500 for the same, and dying soon after, left the land to his sons.

He d. in Killingly, 12 Sept., 1751; tombstone says: "age 62," which must be incorrect. He made his will May 1, 1751; proved Oct. 13, 1751. He calls his wife "Elizabeth;" gives to Ebenezer lands and one-half his tools and quick-stocks. To Edward he gives a farm of 250 acres and one-half of the house and cellar, the widow to have the other half. To his dau., Sarah Peck of Warren, R. I., he bequeaths £500 in bills of public credit. Elizabeth, by her mark, Ebenezer and Edward, sign an agreement Jan. 9, 1753, for a division of the personal effects.

Tombstone at Barrington says: "Dea. Ebenezer died in 1773, in his 70th year, and his wife Hannah d. in 1778, in her 64th year." She d. 8 Jan., 1778.

25. vii. John⁴, b. in Barrington, Dec. 18, 1704-5.

The record says "John Adams, Esq.," died at Barrington, 28 Nov. 1772, in the 67th year of his age. A record at Rehoboth, Mass., says "John of Barrington" and Mrs. Martha Hunt of Rehoboth were married March 20, 1745. No children to "John and Martha" have been found.

There was a "Capt. John Adams" in Warren, R. I.—formerly included with Barrington in the township of Bristol—who was married, as per the published records, Nov. 14, 1754, at Warwick, R. I., "after a lawful publication," to Mrs. Elizabeth Westgate. But the records show that children were born to "John and Elizabeth" in Warren as early, certainly, as 1743, and probably in 1735. (See 5th Generation.)

Capt. John might have had two wives named Elizabeth, but the more natural and reasonable explanation to which the writer inclines, is that there has been a mistake in reading or transcribing and that John and Elizabeth were married Nov. 14, 1734.

It is not known that Capt. John of Warren was John⁴, son of Lieut. James³, b. Dec. 18, 1704-5. There is no record to show who were the parents of Capt. John, nor when he died. The writer allows the substitution provisionally, because the family believe this to have been their origin. Future developments may reveal the truth pertaining to it.

William Taylor Adams was the pioneer writer of stories for the young, and was known almost throughout the world as "Oliver Optic." He began life as a teacher about 1843, in Dorchester, where he made his home, and at last died. His school was said to have been "one of the best, if not the very best in the town." He was for a time a clerk in his father's hotel. But it was as a writer of short and instructive stories in magazines and books that his life was spent and his reputation attained.

At the age of 73 he is said to have written 126 books and more than 1000 short stories. Nearly 2,000,000 copies have been sold, and the individual titles are too numerous to name here. For his first book, "Hatchie, the Guardian Slave," written under the nom de plume of Warren T. Ashton, he received $37.50. His next was "The Boat Club," which met with a ready sale. He traveled extensively, as so many of his stories attest.

From 1858 to 1866 he edited "The Student and Schoolmate," and from 1867 to 1876, the popular monthly, "Oliver Optic's Magazine." He served several years on the Dorchester School Board, and was a member of the Legislature in 1869.

He was a kindly, large-hearted, genial gentleman, aiming to contribute to the enjoyment and healthful moral growth of the young. He d. 27 March, 1897.

JOHN ADAMS OF CAMBRIDGE, MASS.

John Adams was an early comer and first settler in the west part of Cambridge, long called "Menotomy," but later West Cambridge, and now Arlington.

By many persons he was believed to have been the sixth son of Henry Adams of Braintree; that he came to America with his parents when young and returned with his mother to England, coming again with wife and daughter at a later date, and settling in Cambridge. Elisha Thayer, in his Memorial of the Thayer and Adams Families (1835), says John, son of the first Henry, went with his brothers Thomas and Samuel to Concord and Chelmsford, where he was in 1654; "after this period I have not been able to trace him."

Shattuck, in his History of Concord, Mass., says John came to Concord, removing thence to Cambridge where he was in 1650. Dr. James Savage, author of the Genealogical Dictionary which was designed to give an account of all the earliest or first comers, and which embodied what was known or to be found on the subject, wrote as follows: "That he was son of Henry, as amiable credulity would assume, is highly improbable, since he came twenty years or a little less after that great progenitor, and so long outlived him, dying between June and October, 1705-6." Dr. Bond, the historian of Watertown, Mass., says he was "probably the eldest son of George of Watertown."

President John Quincy Adams [see his letter in Genealogical Register, Vol. XXXIV., p. 67] says the ten persons in Henry Adams' family for whom the land grant was made in 1640, were himself, wife, daughter and seven sons.

An aged descendant has written the author that his ancestor, John of Cambridge, was a Scotchman. Numbers of Scotch people settled in West Cambridge, and John's eldest daughter, Rebecca, married Nathaniel Patten, who was a Scotchman. That there was a John, brother of Thomas of Chelmsford, would seem probable from the record; Jan. 1, 1654 [County Records, Book I., pp. 129, 167] Thomas of Concord and wife Mary conveyed to Samuel Stratton two parcels of land—20 acres and 4 acres—including “the house lately called the house of John Adams, last inhabited by William Howe, a weaver,” also barn and orchard, in the part of Concord set off to Sudbury. Oct. 6, 1656, [Bk. I., p. 193], “John of Chelmsford,” for £34 deeded to Samuel Stratton, planter, of Concord, dwelling house occupied by Stratton, barn and orchard, with 24 acres of land, 4 acres being situated in Fair Haven, Mass.

No wife's signature appears to the deed. He (John) was “of Chelmsford” in 1656. Was he “John of Cambridge,” whose wife was Anne, and whose children were born and baptized in Menotomy between 1650 and 1656? Thayer says John was in Chelmsford, 1654, after which he was not able to trace him.

Considering the conflict, or contrariety of opinion, and the doubt which naturally attaches to absence of direct evidence, the writer has decided to give what he has been able to gather of the records and history of “John of Cambridge” and his many worthy descendants, numbering from him as a first comer, and leaving it to every reader to form his own belief as to the identity of John of Cambridge with the son of Henry of Braintree.

JOHN ADAMS OF CAMBRIDGE was a millwright, and was resident in Menotomy about 1650, with his wife “Anne,” and his eldest daughter “Rebecca,” who was born before coming to America. He was admitted as a freeman in 1666. He made his will June 1, 1705-6, and died not long thereafter at an advanced age. In his will he mentions his wife Anne and his sons John and Joseph, his grandson William, his granddaughter Martha Smith, and granddaughter Rebecca. His widow was living in October, 1714, when as executor, with her son “John of Sudbury,” of the will of her husband, the first John, she appended her mark to a deed of 4 acres in Charlestown to the grandson Joseph of Cambridge.
